

REFERENCES

- Belk, Russell W. (1991), "Possessions and Sense of Past," in Highways and Buyways: Naturalistic Research from Consumer Behavior Odyssey, ed. Russell W. Belk, Provo UT: Association for Consumer Research, 114-30.
- Belk, Russell W. and Gregory S. Coon (1991), "Can't Buy Me Love: Dating, Money, and Gifts," in Advances in Consumer Research, Vol. 18, ed. Rebecca H. Holman and Michael S. Solomon, Provo, UT: Association for Consumer Research, 521-27.
- Duck, Steve W., Lee West, and Linda K. Acitelli (1997), "Sewing the Field: The Tapestry of Relationships in Life and Research," in Handbook of Personal Relationships, ed. Steve Duck, New York: Wiley, 10-23.
- Duck, Steve W. and Julia T. Wood (1995), "For Better, for Worse, for Richer, for Poorer: The Rough and Smooth of Relationships," in Confronting Relationship Challenges, ed. Steve Duck and Julia T. Wood, Thousand Oaks, CA: Sage, 1-21.
- Holt, Douglas (1995), "How Consumers Consume: A Typology of Consumption Practices," Journal of Consumer Research, 22 (June), 1-16.
- Schacter, Daniel L. (1996a), "Illusory Memories: A Cognitive Neuroscience Perspective," colloquium paper, Proceedings National Academy of Sciences, 93, 135-39.
- _____(1996b), Searching for Memory, New York: Basic Books.
- Turner, Frederick Jackson ([1893] 1986), "The Significance of the Frontier in American History," in his The Frontier in American History, Tucson: University of Arizona Press, 1-38.